

Moral and Religious Essays, Poems, Anecdotes, Vol. 1: Extracts From My Diary (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Moral and Religious Essays, Poems, Anecdotes, Vol. 1: Extracts From My Diary Since the announcement of my intended publication, the liberal patronage of my native town and others, and the generous encouragement of kind familiar friends, for which I present ray grateful acknowledgments, have established my resolve to continue in the course that I have, not without reflection, adopted. Yet still, when I reflect upon my temerity, in having presented myself to the public, to solicit a share of their confidence and patronage, I am inclined to blush at the apparent boldness of the action; but my spirit tells me I have talents, and that I should use them, and my success renders me more and more determined not to shrink from the performance of my duty.
